Interdisciplinary Studies, Bachelor of Arts Degree

The Interdisciplinary Studies Program is targeted toward highly-motivated students whose interests, needs, and talents are not reflected or met by existing majors. It is a proposal-driven major in which students must develop a set of courses which will encourage them to explore and make connections between two or more traditional disciplines in sufficient depth and breadth to prepare them for employment or graduate/professional study. There are two options available for students wishing to pursue a B.A. in Interdisciplinary Studies.

Option 1: Construction of an Interdisciplinary Studies major consisting of three thematically linked

Option 2: Construction of an Interdisciplinary Studies major consisting of a thematically linked set of coursework without the required minors framework.

Application to Interdisciplinary Studies Program: A student interested in pursuing a degree in Interdisciplinary Studies must have earned at least 30, but not more than 75, credit hours in order to apply for admission to the program. The student should first consult with the Program Director to discuss whether such a program is appropriate and, if so, which Option would be best for the student. The student must then seek out a Fulbright College of Arts and Sciences faculty member who is willing to consult with the student about the concept of the student's proposed interdisciplinary studies area and sponsor their application to the IDST program. The application procedure is the same for both options and consists of two components – a course plan for the major and a narrative statement.

The course plan for the Interdisciplinary Studies program is an individual plan, developed by the student in consultation with an advisor in the Fulbright College Advising Center. The course plan must contain a minimum of 45 credit hours (IDST 2003 + an additional 42 hours) defining the major. For Option 2, a maximum of 21 hours of the proposed course work may come from a single discipline. Thirty credit hours of the proposed coursework must be at the 3000 or 4000 level. At least 2/3 of the advanced level course work must be completed on the UA-Fayetteville campus. The narrative statement must address the following questions:

How does the proposed coursework or how do the minors fit together thematically? What makes the proposed work qualify as an Interdisciplinary Studies major rather than being just a collection of courses?

How and why are the student's interests and needs not being met by existing degree programs?

How does the student view the proposed Interdisciplinary Studies major as contributing to his or her career goals and post-graduate opportunities (employment, graduate school, professional school, etc.)?

The student's application is reviewed first by the advisor then submitted to the Program Director for review. At either step, the student's application to the program may be accepted, rejected, or sent back to the student for revision. A rejection by the Program Director may be appealed to the Program Committee.

Requirements for B.A. in Interdisciplinary Studies:

Once approved, the student's course plan is considered to be a contract for the Interdisciplinary Studies major. Changes in the approved degree plan can be made only with the prior approval of the student IDST advisor and the Program director. Any student choosing to take coursework that is not a part of the approved course plan does so at his or her own risk. The Program Director is under no obligation to approve coursework taken by the student without prior approval in writing.

Students must have a GPA of 3.0 on any coursework to be used as a part of the proposed Interdisciplinary Studies major taken before acceptance into the program and must maintain a GPA of 2.75 or better on coursework constituting the major for continuation in the program and in order to graduate with an Interdisciplinary Studies major. Should a student's GPA in the major fall below 2.75, he or she will have one semester to bring the GPA back to an acceptable level.

If IDST 2003 (Introduction to Interdisciplinary Studies) has not been taken prior to admission to the program, students must take the course during their first semester in the program.

Students in the Interdisciplinary Studies program are strongly encouraged to include an Independent Study/Research Project as a component of their proposed major. Students pursuing independent study/research may add up to 6 credit hours of such activity to the 21 hour maximum in a single discipline (in Option 2) or to a minor (in Option1) to their degree plan.

In addition to the coursework defined in the student's Interdisciplinary Studies major, the student must satisfy all College and University rules regarding core and advanced level course requirements.

Writing Requirement

To complete the Fulbright College writing requirement students must submit a 3-5 paged paper to the Director early in the final semester describing the overall interdisciplinarity of the student's program and addressing the general questions of what was done, why it was done, and what the student learned from it. Students must also either 1.) complete at least one upper-division course which satisfies the College Writing Requirement in one of the disciplines contributing to the student's course plan, or 2) submit to the Director a research paper of that is no less than 12 pages in length and includes 10 references that was written in an upper-division course in one of the disciplines contributing to the student's course plan.

Students wishing to follow the eight-semester degree plan should see the Academic Regulations chapter for university requirements. Core requirement hours may vary by individual, based on placement and previous credit granted. Once all core requirements are met, students may substitute a three-hour (or more) general elective in place of a core area.

Students in the IDST program develop individualized course plans meeting the above requirements. These are referred to in the plan below as IDST Course Plan hours.
