Brent- thanks for your review and consideration of the program. I will do as you suggest and make the switch, adding the special topics class and removing the other.

To begin with we are planning on offering the core classes in alternating semester to drive enrollment. It is still unclear when we will get the program on the books, but we are hoping for Fall 2014. I will keep you all posted.

Molly,
The Race, Class, and Gender class doesn't seem like the right fit for this program. We would, however, recommend a course on "Community Based Research." We would have to create the course, but it would be listed as SOCI 4013, "Special Topics: Community Based Research."

I see your comments below. I know your class is off the future when you are not chair. Is it easy to add later? Or better to add now- your call.

And yes I did check with Sociology and they are on board. I am hoping, when we are a big success, they will add more courses too. 😊

Margaret. Yes that is true Right now I just need to confirm Political Science is okay using these (or others you think are relevant) courses as electives.

I may get back with you all about prerequisites if I can't figure it out.

Molly: you need to spell out that this is 15 hr minor—there is a lot of paperwork that will be required

So if you have 6 required hrs the remaining 9 hrs can come from that list—you also need to list any prerequ for courses where they exist—many of PLSC courses for example require PLSC 2003 American National Government

Importance: High

Margaret and Andrew – After a much needed emergency vacation ☺ I am back at work on our Nonprofit Studies Minor. One thing our administrators need to move forward is a confirmation email that Political Science is okay with us using your classes as electives. I have scratched together notes from several meetings and I think the below is what you offered. Please correct, edited etc... and send approval for the classes you agree to as electives.

As the minor stands now students will take the required classes of Cause Marketing and Cross Sector Collaborations along with an additional 9 hours, of which your class would be one option. To begin the Marketing class will be offered every fall and the Cross Sector class every spring. This would be a minor through the Walton College. Optimally we will add a nonprofit management class in the future.

Looking forward to hearing from you.

Regards,
m
