Minor in Indigenous Studies (INDS)

The Indigenous Studies minor invites discovery of alternative world views, ecological relationships, societies, religions, arts, and governments of Indigenous peoples in North America and beyond from antiquity to present. Immersed in this inherently interdisciplinary field of study, students master and employ its many theories and methodologies, debates and issues, in often comparative contexts. Such exposure and training prepares those who achieve the minor for graduate work in the humanities, business, law, and the sciences as they pertain to Indigenous peoples, but also for any career that requires a supple knowledge of cultural difference in Arkansas and in an increasingly global world.

Students seeking the minor in Indigenous Studies must complete 3 courses, one from each of the three core groups: Culture, History, and Literature, as categorized under headings below. Students then complete an additional 2 elective courses from the list below, for a total of 5 courses or 15 credit hours. Other courses not listed below may serve the requirements, though only as approved by the Indigenous Studies program director. Only 6 credit hours can count toward requirements of other majors or minors.
