Description and justification of the request

| Description of specific change | Justification for this change |
|---|---|
| The total number of credit hours does not change. The title of the minor is being updated to reflect the ever-changing environs in urban and regional planning. The description was also updated to reflect the more modern issues, challenges and methods of inquiry. The required core went from 12 credit hours to six credit hours. Groups were reorganized as tiers. The line-up of course options were also updated. Course added: any approved five-credit hour LARC design studio, any approved one-credit LARC advocacy module as requisite to approved studio, PLSC 4173, SOCI 3153, GEOS 3043, GEOS 4393, GEOS 4693 and ENSC 3933. Courses removed from options: LARC 5386 (course no longer exists) and BIOL 3863. | The name change of the minor and the updated course options better reflects the growing issues, challenges and changes relative to urban and regional planning. Now, more than ever, our students entering the workforce with this value-added minor will better prepared to deal with a variety of issues that can affect positive change. |
